Southwest Resident Awarded Fulbright Scholarship

Native SWDC resident Madeline (Maddy) Hall has been awarded a Fulbright scholarship for graduate study in New Zealand. She plans to spend a year performing research at the University of Otago in Dunedin, and complete a master's degree in Environmental Sociology. Her research will focus on a decision process for local sheep and cattle farmers.

This won't be her first time in New Zealand, where she spent a semester abroad in 2010. On her spring break there, she worked as a farmhand mustering (herding), tagging, and shearing sheep in exchange for room and board. That's where she learned about the decisions farmers face there about participation in the country's carbon credits program.

Before that, these programs had just been something discussed in class, not with a farmer facing important decisions about his family business. She found that the farmer and owner of Te Hapu, a thousand-acre farm on the rocky coast of New Zealand's south island, had done his homework when he showed her a folder of newspaper clippings on carbon credits. He was still unsure about whether to participate, and she became interested how farmers make such decisions. She plans to collect her research data by using concept mapping, a tool for mapping a person's thought process to show how a person thinks about particular issues, options, and decisions.

She believes her research will be relevant in both New Zealand and the United States.

"Knowledge about farmers' decisions to take part in these programs is needed in order to better design effective policies, and to ensure that they respond to farmers' specific desires and needs," she wrote in her proposal.

A Golden Evening Saluted the Family and Legacy of Thurgood Marshall

By Elaine F. Graves

The evening of October 17th marked another outstanding and inspirational "Celebratory Dinner Honoring the Legacy of Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall," which raised funds to support the St. Augustine's Episcopal Church's southwest neighborhood outreach programs. The reception held outside in a tent included over 125 community neighbors, friends, St. Augustine's parishioners, event sponsors, and other supporters. Every two years the church hosts a dinner in honor of Marshall, who was a former parishioner and whose wife, Cecilia Marshall, remains active today on the Altar Guild and serves in other volunteer activities.

Honorary Chair Mrs. Cecilia Suyat Marshall, Rev. Martha Clark, priest-in-charge, and Keynote Speaker Sherrilyn Ifill, seventh president and director-counsel of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Inc. (LDF), greeted attendees at the reception. Thurgood Marshall Dinner Volunteers escorted the guests through the Narthex decorated with photos of Thurgood Marshall and fall flower arrangements. The sanctuary was filled with tables covered by gold tablecloths and floral centerpieces of yellow roses and blue hydrangeas, which highlighted a delicious dinner of Coq au Vin, garden greens salad, and white chocolate pumpkin cheese cake.

Maureen Bunyan of ABC7/WJLA-TV, an elegant and gracious Mistress of Ceremonies, welcomed everyone. Josephus Nelson, St. A's parishioner, read the Invocation, and Rev. Martha thanked the attendees for their support of St. A's outreach programs.

Reverb, an award-winning male a cappella group, sang a rousing program of civil rights anthems.

"We celebrate the life and work of Thurgood Marshall and his beloved wife, Cecilia Suyat Marshall, who embody love of country, respect for the rights of others, freedom and equality for all, and racial harmony," said Rev. Martha. "Our parish strives to emulate them in its efforts to address pressing social issues here in our southwest neighborhood. Our parish hosts a weekly breakfast program, Bread for Life, now in its twentieth year."

She added, "We sponsor summer reading and recreation camps for young people, provide family support programs, offer scholarships for teenagers, and direct community members to appropriate social services agencies."

Keynote Speaker Sherrilyn Ifill mesmerized and inspired the audience with her remarks on the legacy of Thurgood Marshall who previously led the LDF, and assured the audience that the vision and strategy of Thurgood Marshall to

Ron McBee Memorial Tree at Southwest Gardens

By Sam Marrero

On Saturday, November 9th, at 2:00pm, the Southwest Gardens Community gathered with community leaders and friends to plant a cherry tree to honor the passing of "The Mayor of Southwest," Ron McBee. Ron served as an Advisory Neighborhood Commissioner in Southwest from 2007 until the time of his death in Autumn 2013.

Ron was instrumental in managing the July 31st, 2013 realization of SW Community Gardens. Once Fiskars Co. awarded the Project Orange Thumb grant in early 2013, Ron advanced the process of lining up arduous land-preparation tasks and wrangling permits from relevant city government agencies.

Ron is also fondly remembered as an advocate for our neighboring Amidon-Bowen Elementary School and Jefferson Middle School. Education was a cause close to Ron's heart and Ron understood the educational and community-building role of public resource like the Southwest Community Gardens.

Gordon Biersch (Navy Yard) Hosting Southwest Community Gardens Fundraiser

A Deluxe Apartment in the Sky House

By William Rich, Secretary, Near SE/SW Community Benefits Coordinating Council

Ahead of its grand opening on December 2nd, the folks over at Sky House gave a media tour of the east tower building. Sky House is the adaptive reuse of the former EPA towers at Waterfront Station, with the east tower having the address of 1150 4th Street. Construction of the east tower began in February 2012 with the west tower beginning a few months later. This will be the second apartment building to open in Southwest this year - Camden South Capitol opened in April. Vicki Davis and Alan Lederman from Urban Atlantic led the tour of Sky House. JBG is also a partner in the lounge called "Link"; a work station area called "Solve"; a two-level fitness center called "Kick Fitness" with a personal trainer on staff and towel service; 24-hour concierge service; an entertainment kitchen; game room; club room; and an elevated deck with water features, garden area, seating, and BBQ grills. A few units will have private entrances to the shared deck space. A pet grooming area will be located in the basement, along with bike racks. The rooftop features a small swimming pool and observation deck with unobstructed 360 degree views of Southwest and beyond. One can see as far away as Tysons Corner, National Harbor, and the National Cathedral. Safeway is just steps away next door at 1100 4th Street.

The target tenant demographic of the project is professionals, but especially those aged 25-40. Rents will range from the $1,600s for studios to the low $2,000s for 1BRs and up to $3,000 and above for the largest 2BR units. The unit mix includes 13% studios, 59% 1BRs, and 28% 2BR units. A new website will soon launch for Sky House (www.skyhousedc.com) with leasing of both market-rate and affordable units and move-ins on the lower floors of the east tower beginning on Monday, December 2nd.

development and will manage the property.

There are a total of 530 units in both buildings, with the east tower having 266 units and the remaining 264 units in the west tower. Twenty percent of the units (106 units in both buildings) will be affordable for households earning up to 50% of Area Median Income (AMI), which ranges from $37,600 for a single-person household to $53,650 for a family of four. Each building will have seven studio units, 32 one bedroom units and 14 two bedroom units that are set aside as affordable. Both buildings will be at least LEED-Silver, with energy-saving LED lighting and recycled materials among some of the green features.

glass near the ceiling to allow natural light into the rooms. LED lights have also been installed by those glass panels to provide additional mood lighting in the evenings. Most of the units have 9'6" ceiling heights, but units on the third and 12th floors have 12' ceilings.

The common areas have been designed by RD Jones to give a "clubby" feel and Davis calls some of the building amenities "trendsetting for the area, but also a harbinger of things to come for the DC market." One of those innovations is the parking, which will be shared with the office building next door. There are 140 spaces licensed to the residential units, resulting in a parking ratio of approximately 0.5 per unit, double the minimum amount allowed by zoning. The theory behind the parking solution is office workers will use the parking spaces during the day and residents will use the same spaces in the evenings. Sky House will be one of the first buildings in DC to utilize a shared parking solution.

Most of the building amenities are located on the first two floors, which include a Wi-Fi

Guess Who's Coming to Dinner at Arena Stage

By: Sheila Wickouski

Television actor Malcolm-Jamal Warner (The Cosby Show) makes his Arena Stage debut in a new adaptation of the 1967 classic film Guess Who's Coming to Dinner.

If you remember 1967, it was the year the Supreme Court struck down anti-miscegenation laws in Loving v. Virginia.

In Hollywood history, it was the year Spencer Tracy died shortly after this, his last film was completed, receiving a posthumous Oscar nomination for his role as the father. Sidney Poiter was at the peak of his commercial career, having finished To Sir with Love, which is set in an inner city school in London, and In the Heat of the Night, in a racist small town in Mississippi.

Unlike Sidney Poiter's two other films that year, Guess Who's Coming to Dinner is set in the home of a liberal white couple whose daughter brings home an African-American fiance after an overseas trip.

If you wonder about how things have changed, and what are the things that remain same, this warm and witty show exploring family beliefs and the culture of the late 60's is just for you.

December's Art & Spirit Coffeehouse Presents an Evening of Stories for the Advent Season

“Stories for a Season of Expectation,” told by Tara Ramsey and Bruce Crane, is the program for St. Augustine's Art & Music Coffeehouse on Wednesday, December 4th, 2013 at St. Augustine's Episcopal Church. The 7 p.m. program at the church at 600 M St SW includes coffee and desserts served throughout the evening, followed by a Q&A session.

Ramsey and Crane, along with others, will tell stories that point the way to the themes of hope and expectation that mark the Advent Season.

The program, featuring long-time, dedicated parishioners and others, all talented storytellers, promises to be an inspirational and entertaining evening.

The Southwest Episcopal Church's Art & Spirit Coffeehouse series opens on the first Wednesday of each month to showcase local artists in their various media as they perform and share how their faith, art, and social worldview intersect, according to the Rev. Martha Clark, Priest-in-Charge at St. Augustine's. Donations will be accepted to help provide honoraria for the guest artists. Contact rector@staugustinesdc.org, 202-554-3222 or visit www.staugustinesdc.org for further information.

SCHOLARSHIP

Ms. Hall is a 2012 graduate of the the University of Maryland, Baltimore County (UMBC), where she majored in environmental studies in the Sondheim Public Affairs Scholars Program. She attended DC public schools throughout her educational career and graduated from the School Without Walls in 2008. During the summers of 2006-07, she toured as a clown with the acclaimed Vermont youth circus group, Circus Smirkus, and was a featured performer in the Circus Dreams documentary.

Before college, her only international experience was visiting Canada, but she followed up her semester in New Zealand by working in Peru with indigenous people about mitigating climate change effects, conducting environmental research in Ecuador, and traveling South America. She attended the 2012 climate change conference in Doha, Qatar to gather more information about climate change impacts on indigenous peoples.

Ms. Hall is one of more than 1,700 U.S. citizens who will travel abroad for the 2013-2014 academic year through the Fulbright U.S. Student Program. The Fulbright Program is the flagship international educational exchange program sponsored by the U.S. government and is designed to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and the people of other countries. Funding is provided by the U.S. Department of State with support from participating governments and host institutions, corporations and foundations in foreign countries and in the United States.

The program operates in over 155 countries worldwide. Since its establishment in 1946 under legislation introduced by the late Senator J. William Fulbright, the Program has given over 300,000 students, scholars, teachers, artists, scientist, and other professionals the opportunity to study, teach and conduct research, exchange ideas, and contribute to finding solutions to shared international concerns. Recipients of Fulbright grants are selected on the basis of academic and professional achievement, as well as demonstrated leadership potential.

Ms. Hall says she's "really excited" about her trip beginning in January, as are many of her neighbors in River Park. Her family and friends in Southwest are looking forward to hearing more from her during her travels. The only qualm so far, she said, is her mother's concern that she might "meet and marry a sheep farmer" and wind up staying there. From her earlier itinerary, she doesn't seem likely to stay in one place for long, though.

November 24 was Westminster Presbyterian Church's 2013 Education Sunday, this year dedicated to the memory of Ron McBee (1945-2013), "One who did what he could to build community." The Amidon-Bowen and Wilson High School choirs performed, as did members of the Jefferson Academy band. Westminster Church presented 30 new school color robes for the Amidon-Bowen Choir and $500 checks to the Jefferson Student Activities fund and the Wilson Music Program."

God Allows U-Turns!

By Rev. Ida Moss, Senior Pastor • www.MyGreaterWorks.org

Have you ever taken a wrong turn while driving and really messed things up? The best solution is often to make a U-Turn and start over. In Jeremiah 18, we find the story of a potter attempting to shape clay into a beautiful vessel. Jeremiah noticed that when the vessel turned out badly, the potter did not simply discard the clay. Instead, he took that same old clay, started over, and made it into another more perfect vessel. God then told Jeremiah, "I can do the same thing with you!" It is never too late to ask God to help you make a U-Turn! You CAN out-live your past mistakes!

Thank You, Naomi!

Naomi Monk, a long-time Southwest community leader announced she is moving on to other meaningful endeavors. Monk was a former Southwest Neighborhood Assembly President. For 13 years Ms. Monk hosted Southwest's largest volunteer email service, SWDC E-Blast. She faithfully and reliably passed along valuable information to residents; in many cases used she the platform as a tool to obtain prompt responses from DC agencies. Thank you, Naomi!

Art Yards

Over ten days in mid-November, three street artists were brought in to add some much needed love to the old NGA building at Navy Yard in a project dubbed ArtYards. The artists Kelly Towles, DABSMYLA, and Jasper Wong each brought their own individual talents to a building left for demolition. Their work can be seen until March 2014 when the building is slated for removal.
